NEWSPAPER HISTORY

The Rockland Gazette was established in 1846. In 1874 the Courier was established, and consolidated with the Gazette in 1882. The Free Press was established in 1885, and in 1891 changed its name to the Tribune. These papers consolidated March 17, 1892.

Advertising rates based upon circulation and very reasonable. Communications upon topics of general interest, and for the purpose of general information, entered at the postoffice at Rockland for circulation at second-class postal rates.

"No matter if you are hidden in an obscure post, never content yourself with doing your second best, however unimportant the occasion."—Phil. Sher.

A sign of the political times is the substitution of the newspaper advertisement for the mailed circular and the money that has been wasted in "literature" that never leaves headquarters would liquidate the national debt.—New York Evening Sun.

After one of the longest sittings ever held in Androscoggin county, the grand jury rose Monday and reported 151 indictments, which is the largest list ever found by a grand tribunal in this county.

There are no important criminal cases. It is estimated that at least 90 percent of the total number of indictments on evidence furnished by the Sturgis commissioners.

Consul Dunning writes from Milan that thousands of bright young Italians look forward to a visit to America as one of the finishing touches on their commercial education. "In my district," he says, "are scores of men who have passed enough time in America to pick up not only the language, but the American system of conducting business and making accounts. Now that Italy is making such strides in manufacturing, her young and alert men will be doubly interested in American business methods."

A woman without a parallel for commercial wit entered a large department store in New York city to buy a yard of silk, which the clerk told her would cost seventy-five cents. Her purchase was a remnant of a yard and a half. The clerk suggested that she buy the remnant. "What will you take for it?" asked the woman. "Fifty cents, madam," replied the clerk politely. "Well, I'll take it, but you can keep the yard you've just torn off." The clerk was staggered for a moment, but, appreciating the humor of the proposal, made the exchange.

Letter to T. E. Simonton.

Dear Sir: Currie Hardware Co., Atlantic City, N. J., had been dealing in paint for more than twenty years; and last year found-out Devoe. This is how they did it.

Bought two cans, took-off the labels, sent to a chemist for analysis.

The chemist found it pure; and they took our agency.

That is the way to find-out a paint; but not every dealer can do it. There ought to be public provision for making good things known without cost. It's a pity American citizens haven't got it. The people want it, even more than the trade.

Yours truly

F. W. DEVOE & CO.

Wounds, Bruises and Burns

By applying an antiseptic dressing to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflammation sets in, they may be healed without maturation and in about one-third the time required by the old treatment. This is the greatest discovery and triumph of modern surgery. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principle. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soreness and prevents any danger of blood poisoning. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering such injuries entail. For sale at W. H. Kittredge's, and C. H. Pendleton's Drug Stores.

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:

I remember reading a ditty some years ago of which I can recall only the following couplet closing each verse:

"When the frost is on the pumpkin
And the fodder's in the shock,"

The lines keep running in my mind as Mark Twain's jingle used to when ever I boarded a horse-car in days of yore, and heard the conductor's bell-punch as he took fares:

"Punch brothers, punch with care, Punch in the presence of the passenger!"

You see it is in the atmosphere, and there is no escape. Jack Frost has been lurking about for the past few days, and last night he descended upon the pumpkin and every other thing.

He left his mark all right, as a good strong reminder that he was getting ready for more serious business later on. I am all of a shiver as I think of what is coming. There are others I find who have similar spinal movements as the antiquaries, the curators of museums, the librarians, when I have heard the remark often of late: "How I dread the winter!"

Let me get away from this most unpleasant topic to something less chilling. I will tell you about a little trip I have just taken "up country."

Get out your atlas, turn to the map of New York State, find Fulton county, look in the extreme northeast corner, and you will find a place named Northville situated on the Sacandaga river.

This river has its rise some 20 miles north near Piseco lake, and is part of a great water-shed of the Hudson river. I may add in passing, that the State is gradually acquiring this vast Adirondack region for the protection of the beautiful beneficial and greatest water-way of the State.

Sacandaga is an Indian name meaning "sunken waters." For nearly half a century it has been the lumberman's highway for getting his logs to market. The writer of this remembers when this river was the crystal highway too, over which for miles, in strings of ten or a dozen teams, loads of lumber were drawn which had been prepared at several tanneries at and near its source. These are now a thing of the past.

But to come to Northville. This is a town of one thousand or more inhabitants, beautiful for situation in a fertile valley, bounded on the west by a range of the Adirondack mountains and a stretch of hills on the east. The hills and mountains merge a few miles north of the town and keep separating more widely to the south until between them stretches a valley of many miles in width. The panorama presented to the eye from a height at the extreme northern end of the town, is most striking and beautiful at any season of the year, but particularly so now, when nature is using her brush upon the foliage of hill and valley.

When the writer lived there something like 35 years ago, Northville was a small village of perhaps 500 souls. But being the center of a large farming district, and somewhat closely allied with the lumbering region, was quite a thriving and lively place. There were then three good-sized stores carrying general merchandise, one hardware store, feed store, and tailor shop, a small jewelry store, and barber shop, two blacksmith shops, a foundry and grist mill, a meat market and half a dozen cooperages. The main street was a main thoroughfare, and a few barrels was then a chief and paying industry of the place. Not a barrel is now made there. For the education of the mind there was a high school, and for spiritual instruction three churches—a Methodist at the lower end of the village, a Presbyterian at the upper end, and a Baptist in the middle. The Baptists, you see, were the meat in the sandwich. All of these churches still retain their identity, and have something more than a "name to live."

For the convenience of the traveler, and as a rendezvous for the thrifty and the "sitters," there were three hotels, all of which did considerable business, particularly in wet goods. Travel in that region, for the public, was by means of the old-fashioned stage-coach hung on leather springs and drawn by four horses. This stage, with relays of horses, ran every day between Northville and Amsterdam touching at intermediate towns. The distance was about thirty-five miles. That stage-coach and driver was the one thing that filled the small boy's eye. There were few who did not dream of some day filling the exalted position of stage-driver. That stage was scarcely known to enter the village other than with a dash. At the foot of Main street the whip was taken from its socket, the long lash unloosed, and with a great flourish and scraping of brakes the driver drew up in front of the hotel, where all the loungers were awaiting it. A thrilling moment that was for the small boy, and by the way, I saw the old stage driver on my visit; the same that I once looked upon with envious feelings.

Dan Lawton, the veteran, is now in the harness. He drove the bus that took me from the station to my stopping place. Dan would not look right unless he was "handling the ribbons." It is many a day since he held the reins of a stage four-in-hand. But when he did, he had no superior.

So much for Northville of the past—my father's first pastorate, the place where I spent five years of my boyhood days, where I ran barefoot as soon as possible after spring came, and as late as convenient before snow fell, and reveled in it, though sometimes with big toes spelt out on the road, because of contact with stones and board sidewalks; where I stole rides and borrowed apples from neighboring orchards, and suffered external as well as internal discomfort afterward; where I stained my hands with green butternuts, fished for dace in the mill pond, and went in swimming at "the hole"; taking good care to dry my hair before going home. But a clean boy is a rare thing and here I was caught. I was too clean for a boy who had kept away from the water. The cross-examinations at home were too strenuous to dodge. What rides we used to have down "Barker's" hill. There were never such "thank-you-marns" as we constructed on that hill; there were never such "belly-whoppers" as we used to take. What a day that was when I had my first stone sled and pair of red top boots. All these things came back most vividly as I visited the spot of my boyhood trials and triumphs, and conversed with companions of former days, now grown to manhood and womanhood and as heads of families rearing boys and girls of their own.

I pass to the Northville of the present. A few years after my removal from the place, the sound of the locomotive was heard through the valley. Northville became the northern terminus of the Florida, Johnstown and Gloversville R. R. which connects with the New York Central R. R. at Florida.

Four miles from Albany. About a mile and a half from the center of the business portion of the town and on the opposite side of the river was a considerable piece of woods. It was a beautiful place for holding Sunday School picnics—picnics such as the present generation know little about—and camp meetings. The railroad ran through this bit of woods and the depot was built about half a mile beyond. The railroad company saw its opportunity in this woodland and embraced it. They purchased the tract and laid plans for making it a popular season had begun. Upon the station platform lay the carcasses of four deer—three bucks and a doe. The largest weighed 217 pounds. They were shot in the Adirondacks, not far from Northville which is in close touch with the hunting country. A four horse stake running to that vicinity every day.

From what I could learn respecting some things now done at Northville seems destined to go forward to larger things in the not very distant future.

My vacation days are growing beautifully less. We shall leave for Monday next, Oct. 2 and expect to be in Rockland Tuesday night.

which are the golf grounds and a baseball field. A fine rustic theatre graces the center of the park, and near by is a fine hotel, where a band and orchestra discourse music throughout the season. Not far removed is the residence of the president of the railroad, an imposing structure surrounded with beautiful lawns and flowers. Artificial ponds full of lilies give forth a fragrant smell; rustic hovers invite you to their cool retreat; squirrels gambol at your feet, and eat peanuts from your hand. It is an ideal spot for an outing, and everything is conducted in a way to insure against rowdiness.

As a natural sequence to the opening of this park the village of Northville began to take on new life. People came to sojourn for the summer, some to make homes. The town fathers began to make improvements. New streets were laid out; sidewalks were cared for. Every advantage was taken of the opportunity and the result was certain. In due time new industries came in. New blocks of stores went up, the population increased slowly but steadily. The growth was healthy. Today Northville is one of the prettiest towns to be found in many a journey. It has seven or eight glove factories which put out work through the surrounding country, besides furnishing employment for many in town. In addition to these there are two factories, one where metallic binding is made for oil cloth, and the other for manufacturing weather strips. The town is lighted by electricity. Six hotels care for the summer visitors and they are crowded during the season.

As I walked the streets of Northville I could not help contrasting it with our city in one respect. At home we have miles of unsightly plank sidewalks. This town had most of the principal streets laid with concrete sidewalks, which look like "made stone." And the work of laying these is constantly going on. It will not be long before a board walk in that community even on a back street will be a curiosity. Nowhere have I seen handsomer sidewalks than in Northville. One must see them to realize how much they add to the beauty of things. It strikes me that our city could do worse than lay some such walk. The cost of keeping miles of plank walk in repair must be great with lumber so dear. It would be a great saving to put down something more durable, to say nothing of the beautifying effect. Such sidewalk as I saw at Northville is practically indestructible. I saw some which had been down four years, and had weathered some of the coldest sort of winters—and it is cold there. Still there was no crack or bulge to be seen anywhere in it. It was as solid and smooth as the day it was laid. I would like to see a street in our own city paved with this substance. I feel certain there would be more of it soon afterward. I spent five days at Northville renewing old friendships. I had not been there in thirteen years and of course saw much change in the place, and found a good deal to talk about.

By invitation of the pastor of the Baptist church, Rev. T. J. Barber, I preached there on Sunday to large audiences. I found the people worshipping in a new edifice recently dedicated. The former church which I missed very much from its old site, was struck by lightning during a storm in the night, and burned to the ground. That church was built during my father's pastorate there, and was associated in my mind with many precious memories. It has gone with many of the rare saints who worshipped there, and who built themselves into it until it was fragrant with the spices of true spiritual devotion and consecration. The Sunday spent there I will not soon forget. I found my father's memory was yet green and fragrant with the memory of the spirits of those long since gone to their reward seemed to hover over us in the sanctuary, and waves of emotion better felt than described swept our souls. It was indeed good to be there.

I left Northville Monday afternoon for Alps, from which place I am now writing this letter. I was reminded as I boarded the train that the hunting season had begun. Upon the station platform lay the carcasses of four deer—three bucks and a doe. The largest weighed 217 pounds. They were shot in the Adirondacks, not far from Northville which is in close touch with the hunting country. A four horse stake running to that vicinity every day.

From what I could learn respecting some things now done at Northville seems destined to go forward to larger things in the not very distant future.

My vacation days are growing beautifully less. We shall leave for Monday next, Oct. 2 and expect to be in Rockland Tuesday night.

Hazing on the part of the high school Sophomores continues. Saturday night one of the buds of the Freshman class had the audacity to go to the public library unaccompanied and was immediately tackled by a bevy of Sophomore girls. She shouted for help, but the neighbors thought the library was afire, and the appearance of a high official put a temporary stop to the festivities. Up to this time the hazing has had no cases as the result of hazing, but it is not clear how the matter will end. In this connection the Bangor Commercial indulges in the following sarcastic comment: "Judging from the newspaper reports there is more hazing done in the high schools this fall than in the colleges. This is appropriate enough, since it is childish business, at the best."

Hon. Waldo Pettigill, chairman of the Sturges commission, arrived in the city at 3.55 p. m. yesterday and was met at the train by Gov. Cobb. They were driven to the Thordike hotel, where Mr. Pettigill remained over night, returning on the 8 o'clock train this morning. The occasion of his visit is not known. If Mr. Pettigill carries a book of answers with him the reporters never see it.

Saturday evening, Oct. 7, Golden Rod Chapter, O. E. S., will be the guests of Orient Chapter, No. 30, at Union. On that date occurs the annual inspection of the work by D. D. Grand Master Bertha E. Meservy of Golden Rod. Supper will be served on the arrival of the guests at 6 o'clock. Conveyance from Rockland will be by backboats. All who desire to go should notify W. M. Mrs. Abbie E. York, as early as Tuesday night so that transportation may be arranged.

Shortly after the all-out had sounded Sunday afternoon, James Walker, foreman of the Bangor Hose Co., drove down Main street in a livery team belonging to Ralph W. Richards. In front of the Opinion office the horse slipped and the driver was thrown. A large crowd gathered and much sympathy was expressed for the suffering animal but nobody felt authorized to end the horse's misery until the owner appeared. When Mr. Richards arrived the horse was shot. Mr. Richards valued his property at $100.

William F. Norcross, the druggist, is occupying the new building on State street lately built by Florence Donohue. John F. Whitney is moving into the Burpee cottage on State street lately occupied by Galen F. Hix, who with O. P. Hix has moved into the Hix house on Park street, lately vacated by Mrs. T. R. Booth. Fred A. Palmer, who has lately moved to this city from Portland, for the purpose of entering a business course, has leased the large house on Park street, lately vacated by Mrs. D. E. Carleton's house on State street. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Willson are soon to remove to Boston.

The trustees of the Methodist church have voted to make repairs and improvements at a cost of about $2000, as outlined in The Courier-Gazette some weeks ago. The building is to be repaired and painted, a modern heating system installed, the roof repaired, the walls to be altered as to provide for a pastor's room, cloak room, dining room, kitchen room and new parlor. The following committees have been appointed: Heating, G. L. Farrand, Gilbert Hall, Roscoe Staples; remodeling of vestry, L. N. Littlehale, L. S. Robinson, J. E. Stevens; Mrs. George W. Hix, Mrs. L. N. Littlehale, Mrs. Roscoe Staples, Mrs. Robert Sutcliffe, Mrs. Gilbert Hall, Mrs. Harry Day; painting, A. W. Gregory, C. N. Chatto, Mark Hills. Proposals for the work have been sent out and the bids will be opened in a few days.

Oct. 23 was to have been the date for the fall schedule of the Boston & Bangor line to begin but the Eastern Steamship Co. decided to continue the daily trips for the remainder of the season. The four-day week, which has been running since the summer season, General Agent Sherman stated yesterday that the City of Bangor had not and while the City of Rockland had been forced to anchor a few times on account of fog, she had not lost a single trip. When the four-day week schedule begins, next Monday, Capt. E. W. Curtis will assume permanent command of the Rockland, after having shifted about during the summer season from the Rockland to the Bangor. Captain W. A. Rolfe will take command of the Bangor and Captain Fred Brown, who has been in the Bangor during the summer, will take his old position as first pilot of the Bangor. All this changing about is necessary from the fact that during the six-trip schedule there have been three captains for two boats, each captain serving two weeks and laying off one.

A former Rockland man, C. W. S. Cobb, has been appointed a member of the St. Louis Terminal Commission, a board consisting of the mayor, the president of the board of public improvements and seven citizens, its purpose being to investigate the great question of bridge terminals of St. Louis, involving the enormous business interest of that city. The labor of the commission must be very great in extent and the importance of their findings scarcely to be overestimated. The selection of Mr. Cobb one of its members is a compliment to that gentleman and a testimonial to the position he has now in the business circles of the western city. Says one of its editors: "The public will recognize the merits of the commission's work when it is finished and will grant full confidence while it is in progress. The members did not seek appointment. They are business men of standing, who accepted the duty reluctantly. Probably there is not one of them who, as a matter of personal choice, would not gladly pay a handsome bonus for the privilege of withdrawing. Having accepted the task, they are going at it in earnest and are trying hard to accomplish the result of providing St. Louis with the best, quickest and cheapest terminal facilities—the chief and most difficult part of which is to move the basing of freights across the river."

All Are Cordially Invited

Commencing Oct. 3d, and until further notice, the steamer Vinahaven, will land at Isle au Haut, Tuesdays and Saturdays.

The ladies of the Methodist church will hold a business meeting and picnic supper in the vestry Wednesday afternoon and evening.

All of the pretty babies in Knox county will not be on exhibition at the Grange fair this afternoon, but a good many of them will.

Sheriff Tolman and his deputies and some of the other court house officials were nicely entertained by Warden Norton at the state prison Friday.

Whitney Staples of Pleasant River, Vinahaven, was reported the last of the week as having about 1000 bushels of herring, suitable for bait, in his weirs.

The exterior of the almshouse is being made much more attractive by a coat of paint—light yellow, with light blue trimmings. The almshouse has 15 inmates.

This is the week of the Pleasant Valley Grange fair. There will be some good attractions Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, with something in the way of entertainment every evening.

William L. Ford, formerly city editor of the Boston Herald, is now on the night desk of the Boston Herald, a position which has better financial advantages. The best is none too good for Billy.

The Rockland Produce Co. received a carload of grapes Friday night. There were four varieties of the fruit, aggregating 5000 baskets. This is said to be the largest consignment of grapes ever received by a Rockland firm.

After the business meeting of the Post, next Friday evening, there will be a meeting in the interest of the Knox County Veterans' Association. All comrades and veterans in this section are urged to be present.

Night Watchman Magee fell down a flight of stairs at his home on North Main street last Thursday night. One of his hands was quite badly injured, but Cornelius is thinking his lucky stars that he came out of the mishap as well as he did.

William N. Thomas is "on the door" at Farwell opera house, succeeding Bert Keedy who is quite badly injured, and is expected to leave for Florida to spend the winter. Mr. Thomas has a watchful eye and is nimble of finger in separating the seat coupons from the tickets.

King Hiram Crockett conferred the degree upon Benjamin L. Segal and Dr. J. A. Richan Friday night. The council also received an official visit from A. S. Kimball of Norway, grand principal conductor of the work. Refreshments were served.

There was a large attendance Friday afternoon at the funeral of Harold Leavitt. Rev. Robert Sutcliffe officiated. An abundance of floral tributes testified to the esteem in which the young man was held, and the sympathy which is felt for the bereaved family. The pall-bearers were Harry Mather, Will Sullivan, Stephen Sullivan and Herbert Simmons.

The hunters who are now infesting the Knox county woods should bear in mind that there is a law in regard to the destruction of squirrels. Chapter 397 of the private and special laws provides that "whoever, within the limits of the county of Knox, kills or has in his possession, except alive, any gray, red squirrels or chipmunk, forfeits $5 for each of said animals so killed or had in possession, to be recovered on complaint."

At the Pleasant Valley Fair to-morrow evening a concert will be given by Mrs. Blanche Harrington Sampson, who is considered one of the most pleasing reciters on the New England platform. Her repertoire includes selections from many of the best authors, both humorous and dramatic. The Woburn, (Mass.) News said of Mrs. Sampson: " * * * with readings by Mrs. Blanche Harrington Sampson, one of the most gifted artists who has ever rendered a prose selection in Woburn. The wide range and infinite variety of her selections gave something of interest that appealed to all tastes."

FESTIVAL COATS.
Fuller & Cobb are showing at their opening this week some beautiful coats for the Maine Music Festival. They have 15 of these coats in pastel shades of pink, blue, green, yellow, and white, and are of the latest fashion. They are new and beautiful and the cost is but $30.00, $25.00, $20.00 and $15.00, prices that are far cheaper than the same garments can be bought for in Boston.

Rain or shine, the Grange fair will be held today, rain or shine.

Golden Rod Chapter, O. E. S., is to have a fair Oct. 24, day and evening.

The Camden members of Canton Lafayette are to give a ball in Camden opera house next Thursday night.

The first football game of the high school series will be Saturday afternoon between Bath High and Rockland High.

The Rathbone Sisters will meet with Mrs. Harry Dyerburg Wednesday afternoon and a picnic supper will be served.

There will be a meeting of the Quarterly Conference at the Methodist vestry this evening at 8 o'clock. Presiding Elder Jones will be in the chair. Sam Brimington and Eugene Cates have joined the union staff at Farwell opera house, and entered upon their duties last night. Their wide experience as pedestrians will aid them greatly.

The first Sunday mail brought by the paper train arrived last Sunday and consisted of an empty pouch. This was due to the fact that the pullman arriving in the early morning had taken care of the mail matter, but as that pullman is to be withdrawn in a few days the convenience of the Sunday mail will be fully appreciated.

The work of reorganizing the Rockland fire department, along the lines suggested by Chief Engineer Karl to the city government, in his annual report, has begun. Last night a new company was organized at the South end, which will bear the old name of the Gen. Berry Hose Co. It is made up as follows: W. S. Pettie, captain; Al. Niles, lieutenant; Arthur Sproul, Fred Pettie, Fred Chance, Walter Flye, Bert McIntosh, James W. Stevens and Thomas Cook. The N. A. Burpee Hose Co. has just resigned, necessitating a reorganization there.

The municipal officers held a special meeting yesterday afternoon, and granted the petition of the Rockland, Thomaston & Camden Street Railway for a turnout near Rankin block. The only remonstrant was H. M. Falcena, who owns abutting property that he claimed would be damaged. After a long conference Mr. Falcena agreed to sell the Street Railway a strip of his land, and the matter was satisfactorily adjusted. The company agrees to pay between rails and from the outside rail to the street line. At the regular meeting of the city council last night the matter of revising the ward boundaries was given impetus. Alderman Bradford presented an order to have this done and the order had a passage. Aldermen Bradford and Rising were appointed on a committee on the part of the upper board. Stuart and Costello were given license for a sparring exhibition in Elmwood hall and Herman Lissok's petition for a wrestling exhibition was also granted.

AN ADDRESS ON PUERTO RICO.
On tomorrow evening, Wednesday, at 8 o'clock in the Farwell opera house, Rockland people are to be given a treat of unusual character and interest. It is to be a free illustrated address on Puerto Rico, our latest and most interesting territorial possession, setting forth its peculiarities, its points of interest, its present prospects and its future possibilities.

The address proposed to be both educational and entertaining and has been declared to be both wherever given. One hundred and forty beautiful stereoscopic views are to be used in illuminating the address. The speaker, Mr. P. A. Sample, lately from San Juan, P. R., personally had charge of the making of the photographs and the views, and inasmuch as he was at one time a professional photographer, we may safely promise that his pictures will prove to be works of art and not amateur productions.

Mr. Sample comes highly recommended as a pleasing speaker and a man worthy of the confidence of the public. The address will be unqualifiedly free to all gentlemen and ladies, admission being by ticket. Children are not invited. Those who desire tickets may get them for the asking at the box office any time Wednesday before the hour of the entertainment. No collection will accompany the address.

Brewster's Millions

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—A supper in honor of the twenty-fifth birthday of Montgomery Brewster, grandson and heir of Edwin Brewster, millionaire, is interrupted by the announcement of old Mr. Brewster's death.

CHAPTER II.—He is invited to dinner by Colonel Drew.

CHAPTER III.—Monty offers to aid Mrs. Gray and Perry, his foster mother and foster sister. He receives a letter from Grant & Ripley, lawyers, telling him that the fortune of his uncle, James Sedgwick of Montana, has been left to him. Mr. Seward Jones is executor of the Sedgwick will.

CHAPTER IV.

"YOU are both fortunate and unfortunate, Mr. Brewster," said Mr. Grant, after the young man had dropped into a chair in the office of Grant & Ripley the next day. Montgomery wore a slightly bored expression, and it was evident that he took little interest in the will of James T. Sedgwick. From far back in the recesses of memory he now recalled this long lost brother of his mother. As a very small child he had seen his Uncle James upon the few occasions which brought him to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brewster. But the young man had dined with the Brewsters the night before and Barbara had had more charm for him than usual. It was of her that he was thinking when he walked into the office of Seward Jones' lawyers.

"The truth is, Mr. Grant, I'd completely forgotten the existence of an uncle," he responded.

"It is not surprising," said Mr. Grant genially. "Every one who knew him in New York nineteen years ago believed him to be dead. He left the city when you were a very small lad, going to Australia, I think. He was off to seek his fortune, and he needed it pretty badly when he started out. This letter from Mr. Jones comes like a message from the dead. Were it not that we have known Mr. Jones for a long time, handling affairs of considerable importance for him, I should feel inclined to doubt the whole story. It seems that your uncle turned up in Montana about fifteen years ago and there formed a stanch friendship with old Seward Jones, one of the richest men in the far west. Sedgwick's will was signed on the day of his death, Sept. 24, and it was quite natural that Mr. Jones should be named as his executor. That is how we became interested in the matter, Mr. Brewster."

"I see," said Montgomery, somewhat puzzled. "But why do you say that I am both fortunate and unfortunate?"

"The situation is so remarkable that you'll consider that a mild way of putting it when you've heard everything. I think you were told in our note of yesterday that you are the sole heir. Well, it may surprise you to learn that James Sedgwick died possessed of an estate valued at almost $7,000,000."

Montgomery Brewster sat like one petrified, staring blankly at the old lawyer, who could say startling things in a level voice.

"He owned gold mines and ranches in the northwest, and there is no question as to their value. Mr. Jones in his letter to us briefly outlines the history of James Sedgwick from the time he landed in Montana. He reached there in 1885 from Australia, and he was worth $300,000 or $400,000 at the time. Within five years he was the owner of a huge ranch, and scarcely had another five years passed before he was part owner of three rich gold mines. Possessions accumulated rapidly; everything he touched turned to gold. He was shrewd, careful and thrifty, and his money was handled with all the skill of a Wall street financier. At the time of his death in Portland he did not owe a dollar in the world. His property is absolutely unincumbered—safe and sound as a government bond. It's rather overwhelming, isn't it?" the lawyer concluded, taking note of Brewster's expression.

"And he left everything to me?"

"With a proviso."

"Ah!"

"I have a copy of the will. Mr. Ripley and I are the only persons in New York who at present know its contents. You, I am sure, after hearing it, will not divulge them without the most careful deliberation."

Mr. Grant drew the document from a pigeonhole in his desk, adjusted his glasses and prepared to read. Then, as though struck by a sudden thought, he laid the paper down and turned once more to Brewster.

"It seems that Sedgwick never married. Your mother was his sister and his only known relative of close connection. He was a man of most peculiar temperament, but in full possession of his mental faculties. You may find this will to be a strange document, but I think Mr. Jones, the executor, explains any mystery that may be suggested by its terms. While Sedgwick's whereabouts were unknown to his old friends in New York, it generally was fully posted on all that was going on here. He knew that you were the only child of your mother and therefore his only nephew. He sets forth the dates of your mother's marriage, of your birth, of the death of Robert Brewster and of Mrs. Brewster. He also was aware of the fact that old Edwin Brewster intended to bequeath a large fortune to you, and thereby hangs a tale. Sedgwick was proud. When he lived in New York he was regarded as the kind of man who never forgave the person who touched roughly upon his pride. You know, of course, that your father married Miss Sedgwick in the face of the most bitter opposition on the part of Edwin Brewster. The latter refused to recognize her as his daughter, practically disowned his son and heaped the harshest kind of calumny upon the Sedgwicks. It was commonly believed about town that Jim Sedgwick left the country three or four years after this marriage for the sole reason that he and Edwin Brewster could not live in the same place. So deep was his hatred of the old man that he fled to escape killing him. It was known that upon one occasion he visited the office of his sister's enemy for the purpose of slaying him, but something prevented. He carried that hatred to the grave, as you will see."

Montgomery Brewster was trying to gather himself together from within the fog which made himself and the world unreal.

"I believe I'd like to have you read this extra—the will, Mr. Grant," he said, with an effort to hold his nerves in leash.

Mr. Grant cleared his throat and began in his still voice. Once he looked up to find his listener eager, and again to find him grown indifferent. He wondered dimly if this was a pose.

In brief, the last will of James T. Sedgwick bequeathed everything, real and personal, of which he died possessed to his only nephew, Montgomery Brewster of New York, son of Robert and Louise Sedgwick Brewster. Supplementing this all important clause there was a set of conditions governing the final disposition of the estate. The most extraordinary of these conditions was the one which required the heir to be absolutely penniless upon the twenty-sixth anniversary of his birth, Sept. 25.

The instrument went into detail in respect to this supreme condition. It set forth that Montgomery Brewster was to have no other worldly possession than the clothes which covered him on the September day named. He was to begin that day without a penny to his name, without a single article of jewelry, furniture or fixtures that he could call his own or could thereafter reclaim. At 9 o'clock, New York time, on the morning of Sept. 23 the executor, under the provisions of the will, was to make over and transfer to Montgomery Brewster all of the moneys, lands, bonds and interests mentioned in the inventory which accompanied the will. In the event that Montgomery Brewster had not in every particular complied with the requirements of the will to the full satisfaction of the said executor, Seward Jones, the estate was to be distributed among certain institutions of charity designated in the instrument. Underlying this imperative injunction of James Sedgwick was plainly discernible the motive that prompted it. In almost so many words he declared that his heir should not receive the fortune if he possessed a single penny that had come to him in any shape or form from the man he hated, Edwin Brewster. While Sedgwick could not have known at the time of his death that the banker had bequeathed $1,000,000 to his grandson, it was more than apparent that he expected the young man to be enriched liberally by his enemy. It was to preclude any possible chance of the mingling of his fortune with the smallest portion of Edwin P. Brewster's that James Sedgwick in his deathbed put his hand to this astonishing instrument.

There was also a clause in which he undertook to dictate the conduct of Montgomery Brewster during the year leading up to his twenty-sixth anniversary. He required that the young man should give satisfactory evidence to the executor that he was capable of managing his affairs shrewdly and wisely; that he possessed the ability to add to the fortune through his own enterprise; that he should come with a fair name and a record free from anything worse than mild forms of dissipation; that his habits be temperate; that he possess nothing at the end of the year which might be regarded as "wasteful" or "extraneous"; that he make no endowments; that he give sparingly to charity; that he neither lend nor give away money, for fear that it might be restored to him later; that he live on the principle which inspires a man to "get his money's worth," be the expenditure great or small. As these conditions were prescribed for but a single year in the life of the heir, it was evident that Mr. Sedgwick did not intend to impose any restrictions after the property had gone into his hands.

"How do you like it?" asked Mr. Grant as he passed the will to Brewster.

The latter took the paper and glanced over it with the air of one who had heard it but had not fully grasped its meaning.

"It must be a joke, Mr. Grant," he said, still groping with difficulty through the fog.

"No, Mr. Brewster, it is absolutely genuine. Here is a telegram from the probate court in Sedgwick's home county, received in response to a query from us, that the will is to be filed for probate and that Mr. Sedgwick was many times a millionaire. This statement, which he calls an inventory, enumerates his holdings and their value, and the footing shows $5,345,000 in round numbers. The investments, you see, are gilt edged. There is not a bad penny in all those millions."

"Well, it is rather staggering, isn't it?" said Montgomery, passing his hand over his forehead. He was beginning to comprehend.

"In more ways than one. What are you going to do about it?"

"Do about it?" in surprise. "Why, it's mine, isn't it?"

"It is not yours until next September."

"Well, I fancy I can wait," said Brewster, with a smile that cleared the air.

"But, my dear fellow, you are already the possessor of a million. Do you forget that you are expected to be penniless a year from now?"

"Wouldn't you exchange a million for seven million, Mr. Grant?"

"But let me inquire how you purpose doing it?" asked Mr. Grant mildly.

"Why, by the simple process of destruction. Don't you suppose I can get rid of a million in a year? Great Scott, you wouldn't do it! All I have to do is to cut a few purse strings, and there is but one natural conclusion. I don't mind being a pauper for a few hours on the 23rd of next September."

"That is your plan, then?"

"Of course. First I shall substantiate all that this will sets forth. When I am assured that there can be no possibility of mistake in the extent of my fortune and my undisputed claim I'll take steps to get rid of my grandfather's million in short order." Brewster's voice rang true now. The zest of life was coming back.

Mr. Grant leaned forward slowly, and his intent, penetrating gaze served as a check to the young fellow's enthusiasm.

"I admire and approve the sagacity which urges you to exchange a paltry million for a fortune, but it seems to me that you are forgetting the conditions," he said slowly. "Has it occurred to you that it will be no easy task to spend a million dollars without in some way violating the restrictions in your uncle's will, thereby losing both fortunes?"

KIDNEY DISEASES CAUSE ONE-THIRD OF THE TOTAL DEATHS.

When the Kidneys fail to perform their functions properly by not straining out the poisonous waste matter from the blood as it passes through them, the poisons are carried by the circulation to every part of the body, deranging the different organs. This causes heart trouble, stomach trouble, sluggish liver and a host of other ills, all due to deranged Kidneys.

corrects irregularities and cures Kidney and Bladder diseases in every form, tones up the whole system, and the diseases that have resulted from disordered Kidneys disappear, because the cause has been removed. Commence taking FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE at the first sign of danger. Do not risk having Bright's Disease or Diabetes.

CURED OF BRIGHT'S DISEASE. Mr. Robert O. Burke, Elmira, Saratoga Co., N. Y., writes:—I am glad to have an opportunity of telling what magnificent results I have had from using FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE after having tried other advertised medicines and several physicians. Before I began I had to get up from 10 to 15 times each night to relieve my bladder. I was all bloated up with dropsy and my eyesight was so impaired that I could scarcely see one of my family across the room. In fact, I was so badly used up that I had given up hope of living when I was cured by a friend to try FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE. One bottle worked wonders, and before I had taken the third bottle the superfluous flesh had gone, as well as all other symptoms of Kidney trouble. My friends were surprised that I was cured, as they all thought I was going to die. Every few days some one comes from miles away to learn the name of the wonderful medicine that cured me of Bright's Disease, and not one that has tried it has failed to be benefited.

This Week

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

A review from the columns of the Rockland Gazette, of some of the events which interested Rockland and vicinity for the three weeks ending Sept. 30, 1880.

Cider was being sold as low as seven cents a gallon in the markets.

Walter Tibbets had arrived in Eureka, Calif., and entered the employ of his brother A. C. Tibbets.

Capt. J. Brainerd Hall died at the age of 44. He was the second son of Capt. Hiram Hall and it was the first death in his father's family.

The Gazette called attention to the fact that the population of Rockland and Belfast was the same in 1850, exactly 3062.

W. H. Priest opened tailoring rooms over O. E. Blackington's store.

F. G. Singhi & Co. bought out the millinery business of Mrs. O. A. Wiggin.

Jonathan White was thrown from his team and sustained a broken leg.

The Congregational ladies gave a harvest festival at the depot on Tillson street. One feature was a fan drill, performed by 21 young ladies, dressed in black and wearing red sashes, with large red fans as head dress. The Gazette said: "Many were the many compliments that must have envied Mrs. Hitchcock her charming command, and yearned for a military commission that would bring service in such a corps."

There was also an operative version of the "Courtiers of Miles Standish," the libretto of which was written by Mrs. T. A. Wentworth. The principal roles were sustained by Mrs. F. R. Spear, James Wright and George E. Torrey.

STATE OF MAINE

To the Honorable, the Judge of the Probate
Court in and for the County of Knox:
Respectfully represents, that the late land, situated in said County, and that the said land, together with the buildings thereon, situated on the southerly side of Sea street, in said Rockland, and bounded and described as follows:

To wit, beginning at stake and stones at the northeast corner of the land of the late Benjamin Clark on Sea street running easterly parallel with the line of said Sea street 24 feet; thence southerly on line of land formerly of R. Hart 90 feet to stake and stones; thence westerly 24 feet to the land of the late Benjamin Clark; thence northerly to the place of beginning, being the same premises conveyed by Elmina E. Hart by his deed dated May 19, 1893, and recorded Book 96, Page 25, Knox County Register of Deeds.

That said real estate is subject to a mortgage given by said Elmina E. Hart in her lifetime to Myrtle E. Hodge, of said Rockland, the principal sum of six hundred dollars ($600.00), dated June 1, 1890, and said mortgage is duly recorded in said County Register of Deeds, Book 106, Page 520.

That said Elmina E. Hart, has duly made election and filed notice thereof in said Probate Court and has rejected the specific provision made for him in the will of said Elmina E. Hart and has claimed his right and interest by descent in said real estate, in accordance with the Revised Statutes of Maine, thereby claiming one-third part thereof, undivided free from the payment of debts.

as can be ascertained amount to $229.94
And the expenses of sale and administration, to about 100.00

sufficient to pay the debts of deceased, and expenses of sale and administration, and it is necessary for that purpose to sell some part of the real estate to raise the sum of $184.94

Wherefore your petitioner prays that he be licensed to sell and convey at private sale all or so much of the said real estate as may be claimed by said widow free from the payment of debts, namely two-thirds thereof, undivided, subject to said mortgage, to pay said debts and expenses of sale and administration.

"WHEN WE WERE TWENTY-ONE"

London. Courtney will present at Farwell opera house the Friday evening

This clever society comedy has been pronounced by the press and public as one of the best things in this line of work that Nat C. Goodwin and Maxine Elliot have ever been seen in, and as the company engaged to present this play in New England will compare favorably with William Morris, supported by Miss Florence Wickliff, that was seen here some seasons ago, it is safe to predict that nothing better will be seen at the local house during the season.

is performed in itself and after sitting through this beautiful performance the person always feels that it is an evening well spent. Remember Friday

The Joseph Flynn Stock Co., which gagement last season to excellent success, and presented during their stay a variety of plays, which were appreciated by all produced by a repertoire company. This year their engagement has been limited to three nights and one matinee as this is looked for as the Joseph Flynn Stock Co. is sure to catch the eye. See next issue for a cor-

WONDERFUL CURE

Covered from Head to Foot with Humours—Forty Boils on Head
at One Time—Doctors and Drug Bills $100—Baby Grew Worse.

CURED BY CUTICURA
FOR FIVE DOLLARS

Mrs. George H. Tucker, Jr., 335
Greenfield Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., is a grateful mother. "When six months old," she says, "my little girl weighed a pound and a half less than at birth. When one month old a scab formed on her face, spreading until it completely covered her from head to foot, followed by boils, having first on her head at one time, and more on her body. Then her skin started to dry up, and it became so bad, she could not shut her eyes to sleep. One month's treatment with Cuticura Soap and Ointment made a complete cure, and now my child is as large, strong,
and healthy as any child of her age.
The doctor's and drug bills were over one hundred dollars, and my baby grew worse all the time. Then we spent less than five dollars for Cuticura and cured her."

CUTICURA A BLESSING

To Skin-Tortured Babies and Tired Mothers.

The suffering which Cuticura Soap head, eczema, rashes, and every form of itching, scaly, pimply skin, and scalp humours, with loss of hair, of

OPENING

Fine Outer Garments, Suits, Waists, Costumes, Fine Furs

FOR THE WEEK BEGINNING

Tuesday, October 3

We are a little late with this opening, but we think it will pay every customer that has waited. You know it takes more time to make these fine garments which we will show you than the ordinary ready made garments. At this opening hardly two garments of a style will be shown and we will place before you some very old and attractive styles. Not all of our stock will be open this first day, but new things will be coming every day during the week.

On account of rush of work for the Festival our
